THE DOCYARD CONCLUDES SUMMER SEASON WITH SPECIAL SCREENING OF GIVE UP TOMORROW
AT THE BRATTLE THEATRE, AUGUST 27

Suspenseful Award-Winning Documentary Exposes the Frenzy in the Case of a Wrongly Accused Man

CAMBRIDGE, MA — The DocYard, Boston's premiere showcase for documentary film, is proud to present Give Up Tomorrow, a documentary film by Michael Collins, as the closing night film for the fifth edition of the celebrated documentary screening series. Winner of the Audience Award at Tribeca Film Festival, Give Up Tomorrow is the compelling exposé of the tumultuous schisms between race, class, political power and the justice system in the Philippines. The film will screen August 27 at 8pm at the historic Brattle Theatre followed by an exclusive, in-person Q&A with director Michael Collins and producer Marty Syjuco.

Give Up Tomorrow exposes a Kafkaesque extravaganza populated by flamboyantly corrupt public officials, cops on the take, and a frenzied legal and media circus. It is also an intimate family drama focused on the near mythic struggle of two angry and sorrowful mothers who have dedicated more than a decade to executing or saving one young man, Paco Larrañaga.

Set amidst old world vestiges of colonialism, classism and backdoor politics in the Philippines, Give Up Tomorrow rivetingly exposes a twisted, contemporary world of corruption and injustice. In a murder case that ends a nation's use of capital punishment, but fails to free an innocent man, two grieving mothers personify the chasms – both nightmarish in scope – that divide two families and, by extension, a nation.

Human Rights Award, 2012 Docs Barcelona Film Festival

“A remarkably cogent docu... Docus about abuses of justice abound, but few present complicated events in so concrete, linear, and compelling a fashion” – Variety

“This film about a man who never stops believing, his courageous family and the unfortunate power of corruption at its worst, is a must see...” – The Huffington Post
